

FAB is affiliated with the following Networks:

1. International Association of Bioethics (IAB)
2. Bioethics Network on Women's Issues in the Arab Region (BNWIAR)
3. Feminist Approaches to Bioethics in Canada (FAB Canada)

International Association of Bioethics (IAB)

The aims of the International Association of Bioethics (IAB) are to:

- Facilitate contacts and the exchange of information between those working in bioethics in different parts of the world
- Organize and promote international conferences in bioethics
- Encourage the development of research and teaching in bioethics, and
- Uphold the value of free, open and reasoned discussion of issues in bioethics.

Information about IAB, its journals, congresses and other activities, and links to a number of networks and organizations with mandates related to bioethics are found on the IAB website.

Since 1996, FAB has held its biennial World Congress in conjunction with IAB's biennial World Bioethics Congress.

Bioethics Network on Women's Issues in the Arab Region (BNWIAR)

The Bioethics Network on Women's Issues in the Arab Region was initiated in 2011 by the UNESCO Cairo Office and experts in the region to:

- Open a dialogue on ethical issues surrounding women’s health and welfare in the Arab region, and
- Establish a network among experts and institutions working on these issues in the region and outside the region.

Information about the network and its activities, and articles and comments by its members are found on the BNWIAR blog.

Feminist Approaches to Bioethics in Canada (FAB Canada)

FAB Canada is an affiliate group of the Canadian Bioethics Society (CBS). At annual CBS conferences, FAB Canada provides networking opportunities for FAB members in Canada and other conference attendees engaged in feminist bioethics. FAB Canada allows participants to share information about their work, brainstorm about collaborative opportunities in Canada and internationally, share news about FAB-related forthcoming events, projects, and local developments, and plan future feminist-themed panels and presentations.
